Borough Challenging Sewer Authority's Way Of Calculating Its Bills

Infiltration and inflow in the bookkeeping department may be causing as much surcharge as problems in the sewer lines, it appeared this week.

Budgets for the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority are based on operating expenses times the percentage of flow assigned to a given municipality in the previous year, explained John McGee, head of the Authority this week.

But Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund thinks that using a percentage is the wrong way to go.

The Authority's budget is not anchored to actual flow, she said, "and why isn't it?"

"Most people think we're paying for the amount going through, not for a certain percentage of a budget. Municipalities should be paying on the actual flow they produce."

Borough Council last week unanimously agreed to withhold the payment due February 15 for the 30-day grace period (10 percent penalty for going beyond that period) until the billing matter is cleared up.

Mayor Sigmund charged last week, in a letter to the Authority's executive director, Arthur Kling, that Borough residents are paying over 1000 percent more for sewer treatment now than in the last three years of Princeton's independent sewer plant.

Meanwhile, the mayor said she expects to meet Monday with Mr. McGee and the Borough's representative on the Authority, Robert Mills, to talk about bookkeeping procedures and the contents of her letter.

"I was somewhat surprised by her letter," Mr. McGee says. "We work over our

EPA ADMINISTRATOR William D. Ruckelshaus was in town last Saturday to receive the highest honor that Princeton University can bestow upon an alumnus—the Woodrow Wilson Award for distinguished achievement in the nation's service. Speaking informally at the Alumni/ae Day Luncheon in Jadwin Gym, Mr. Ruckelshaus delighted the audience of more than 1,200 with his self-deprecating humor. Earlier, he gave a formal address in Alexander Hall on the importance of and need for building public trust in the EPA.

EPA Head William Ruckelshaus Receives Woodrow Wilson Award

"He has felt the wrath of a President and the heat of Congress but remains unscathed in keeping the public trust with integrity, courage and personal honor."

With these words, R. Manning Brown, president of the board of trustees of Princeton University, presented the Woodrow Wilson Award to William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Mr. Ruckelshaus, who graduated from Princeton in 1957, received the award at a luncheon meeting of the Alumni Association in Jadwin Gym. The award is presented annually on Alumni Day "to the alumnus of the undergraduate college whose activities exemplify Woodrow Wilson's ideal of Princeton in the nation's service."

Previous recipients include Presidential Assistant James A. Baker, who was honored last year; Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board; former Ambassador George F. Kennan; Sen. Claiborne Pell; New York Times editorial page editor John B. Oakes; Ralph Nader; Adlai E. Stevenson; former Attorney General Nicholas D. Katzenbach, and New Yorker writer John McPhee.

Mr. Ruckelshaus was the first administrator of the EPA in the Nixon Administration. During the Watergate disclosures, he stepped in to take over as acting director of the FBI, and then was appointed United States Deputy Attorney General under Elliott Richardson. When Nixon called for the firing of the special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox, Mr. Richardson and Mr. Ruckelshaus defied the Presidential order, lost their jobs and won the nation's respect.

New Alternatives Will Be Studied For Alignments of Routes 92, 206

The Department of Transportation has eliminated one of the four build alternatives for Route 92 that it proposed last March and added two others, with some variations or "shifts" in alignment.

The five alternatives that have been advanced for further engineering and environmental study were outlined Tuesday night to municipal officials at a meeting in Township Hall. The public meeting on the alternatives will be held Monday night at 7:30 in the West Windsor-Plainsboro High School. The public is invited to come as early as 6:30 to view maps and ask questions of DOT engineers and project location officials.

Still in the running for consideration as the route that is supposed to connect Route 206 north of Princeton and Route 33 east of Hightstown is a freeway generally along the original preserved alignment. A new element, however, is the proposed relocation of Route 206 in a westerly curve behind the Princeton airport. As proposed by the DOT for further study, 206 would take off from a point just north of the Ewing Street intersection, cross Cherry Valley Road, proceeding west of Princeton airport, parallel to Opposum Road, to rejoin 206 north of Orchard Road.

Along the Princeton-Montgomery border several alignments are shown, either straddling the border, which Princeton officials object to on environmental grounds, or cutting further into Montgomery where several developments are either proposed or underway. Intersecting Route 27 at Raymond Road, this Alternative 1 crosses Route One at county road 522 and paralleling Schalks Road proceeds across Plainsboro and Cranbury to the Hightstown bypass, about which there seems to be little disagreement.

An identical alternative in terms of alignment, except that it was to be an expressway with some traffic signals instead of a freeway (all interchanges are grade-separated) will be modified to a freeway alternative. Still another possibility is constructing only the Princeton and Hightstown bypasses.

Two new alternatives have been proposed to address the concern for farmland preservation in Cranbury

Generous Gift; Wrong Recipient

His intentions were friendly, but his selection couldn't have been more off the mark.

Thirty-nine-year-old Mertyn L. Marshall of Trenton was in an expansive mood late Thursday evening when he observed Ralph Terracciano dining with some friends at The Annex Restaurant on Nassau Street. He sat down at their table and offered Mr. Terracciano a marijuana cigarette. What Mr. Marshall obviously didn't know is that Mr. Terracciano is a Borough patrolman.

"Do you know who I am?" asked the surprised, off-duty officer. When Mr. Marshall replied that he did not, Ptl. Terracciano informed him that he was a police officer and Mr. Marshall was under arrest.

Ptl. Terracciano had someone call the police who arrested Marshall after they found four marijuana cigarettes in his possession. He was taken to headquarters, charged with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana and later released, pending his appearance in Borough court March 7.

William Ruckelshaus

Described as "the architect of the nation's environmental program," the man who was called in to head the EPA again after the resignation of Anne Gorsuch was cited for "his willingness and ability to serve with distinction, for his solid record of achievements, (and) for the trust that he engenders."

Earlier in the day Mr. Ruckelshaus spoke before 1,000 alumni in Alexander Hall on "Risk in a Free Society."

He told the gathering that in his second tenure at EPA, his first goal "was the restoration of public confidence in the agency," and added that "straightening out the way we handle health risk is central to achieving it."

Mr. Ruckelshaus remarked, "We will retain the administrative flexibility we need to effectively protect the public health and welfare if the public believes we are trying to act in the public interest."

Also honored at Alumni Day ceremonies was John W. Tukey, Donner Professor of Science and Professor of Statistics. Prof. Tukey, who describes himself as a "chemist-turned-topologist-turned-statistician," was presented the James Madison Medal honoring an alumnus of the Graduate School who has distinguished himself in his career.

The Moses Taylor Pyne Prize, the highest general distinction conferred on an undergraduate, was awarded to two seniors. They are Stephen V. Vavasis, a mathematics major from Arlington Heights, Ill., and biochemistry major Lynn A. Weston of San Diego, Calif. They were cited as members of the senior class "who most clearly manifested excellent scholarship, character, and effective leadership in the best interests of Princeton University."

budgets pretty carefully on a line-by-line basis."

He added that he had received the letter only last Friday and did not want to comment on it in detail.

Mayor Sigmund also said this week that she has written to mayors of the other three municipalities belonging to the Authority — Princeton Township, West Windsor and South Brunswick — asking for a meeting to talk about sewer costs, the basis of these costs and controls in the system.

Township Examines Flow. While all this has been going on, Township engineer Robert Kiser, at the request of Mayor Winthrop S. Pike, has been examining flows at the two stations that serve Princeton: the Number Six meter on Alexander Street and the Princeton pumping station meter at River Road.

I found that Number Six had a "very flat line" on the chart last March and April, although it was a very rainy period when heavy flows might be expected to show. At the same time, the River Road station did show the expected ups and downs of a rainy time. Differences between the two amounted, on some occasions, to five million gallons a day, Mr. Kiser found.

"Either the meter is not registering properly," he suggested, "or there is a restriction in the line that doesn't allow the full flow to get in."

The Authority has hired C.F.M. Associates who are now checking out the meters. Also, Mr. Kiser said, meters are very sensitive, designed with a floating ball which can become tangled with something like toilet paper, and sink, thereby distorting measurements. The Authority is planning to acquire a sonic meter which measures the height of the flow through sound waves, he said.

Mr. Kiser's figures will be reviewed this Thursday at an Authority meeting. Mr. McGee said he had not yet seen them.

Underbilled Reviewed. After January 1, Mayor Sigmund, concerned about another sewer problem — the three years of underbidding because readings from Number Six meters were multiplied by 100 and not 1000 — asked municipal attorney Walter Bliss and engineer George Oleksa to investigate the Authority's figures.

"They wanted to see what the Authority's auditors had seen," Mayor Sigmund said. "But they were only given readouts of the same figures the auditors saw. Apparently the auditors didn't go back to the meters. So George and Walter are now looking at the meters."

"I hope that, by sitting down with Mayor Sigmund, we can alleviate her concerns," Mr. McGee says. "We're very concerned that what we do is well-understood by the public, and we want it known that we conduct our affairs on a fair and equitable basis. We've got to be pure as Caesar's wife."

TOPICS Of The Town

HISTORIC SITES?
Maybe Time Is Now. The explosion of Route One, along with public reaction to Collins plans for Palmer Square and new construction already up in Princeton, has led members of the Joint Historic Sites Committee to think the time may be now, for an Historic Sites ordinance.

This Thursday, in the public part of Council's 8 p.m. work session, members of the Committee will make a presentation and propose the idea to Council. They will show a few slides of places like Annapolis which are similar to Princeton in size, demography and the presence of a large institution, showing what an Historic Sites ordinance might accomplish.

Such an ordinance was drawn up in the late 1970s but was abandoned in 1978 under the objections of Princeton University and Princeton Theological Seminary.

"We were invited back last fall by the former Mayor and Council to make a presentation," says Constance Greiff, of the Commission, but scheduling problems could not be resolved.

"Now there is a new administration. This Council has only one or two members who were there during former discussions of the ordinance, so there are new people who haven't heard our arguments."

"Probably public reaction to Collins and Route One has led the Borough to re-think the idea. After all, historic areas are the prime ones for roads — Alexander Street has been suggested as a main and thoroughfare into Princeton, for example."

Mrs. Greiff recalls that Princeton University opposed an ordinance partly on the grounds that people in Princeton were such a fine group of people that regulations weren't needed.

"But some things have happened since," she remarked, "and I think there is greater public interest in the entire subject."

SCOFFLAWS ARRESTED
By Township Police. Two Princeton residents, and a third person from Morrisville, Pa., were arrested by police last week, after a crime check revealed they were wanted for ignoring warrants.

Kenneth McRae, 22, 16 Mulberry Row, was arrested last week in the Borough and turned over to Township police who had a warrant for his arrest for ignoring motor vehicle summonses totalling $85. McRae was held in Township jail and later released in $85 bail.

Donald B. Tadlock, 40, 29 Green Street, was arrested

School Board Deadline

Although the deadline for filing is this Thursday at 4, for those who want to run for the school board, so far there is no contest in either Borough or Township. Petitions have, however, been taken out by residents considering a run in the race.

In the Borough, Corinne Kyle is unopposed, so far, for the single seat available. Harry Levine and Hugh Brandt are running for the two Township seats open this year. Both are incumbents. Mrs. Kyle ran last year unsuccessfully.

Monday evening in the Borough and also turned over to Township police, who had warrants for his arrest for contempt of court and for ignoring two motor vehicle charges. He was being held in Township Jail in $330 bail until his appearance in Township court.

After the car in which he was a passenger was stopped Monday night for a motor vehicle check by Township police, Oliver D. Yawn, 32, of Morrisville, Pa., was held in $1,290 bail for the Trenton Police Department. A computer check had revealed that Yawn was wanted by police there on motor vehicle warrants.

STUDENT SUITE ENTERED

In Holder Hall. An unlocked student's suite in Holder Hall on the Princeton University campus was entered last week and police report there were three victims.

One lost a $200 35 mm camera and a Sony Walkman radio valued at $125; a second lost a $30 pair of earrings and a third $150 from a wallet left on a bureau.

A 19-inch color television set, a cassette tape deck and a stereo receiver with a combined value of $583 were stolen Saturday from a Witherspoon Lane home. Police report that an outside storm door had been forced and then six glass panes in an interior storm door had been punched out and a security chain lock broken to gain access to the inside. Ptl. William Nathan investigated.

There was a burglary and attempted theft at a Green Street residence between 9:30 Friday night and 12:15 Saturday morning.

The victim told Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm when she returned home shortly after midnight she noticed that the rear door had been forced open. Entering, she did not observe anything missing but later noticed that a stereo system in a second-floor bedroom had been disconnected. Nothing was taken, police report.

An entry into a Little Brook Road home while the occupants were away on a three-day vacation last week, was reported by Township police. Two television sets and a quantity of jewelry were taken.

The rooms and attic had been ransacked, police said, after the intruder had gained entry by prying molding from a pane of glass in a living room door. The victims discovered several doors in the house had been disturbed when they returned home at 11:30 Friday night.

Pair Charged with Shoplifting. A suspicious Princeton Army-Navy Store merchant reporting two suspicious customers in his store has led to the arrest of two shoplifters.

Charged with shoplifting and possession of stolen property — suits taken from Langrock and Harry Ballot — are Otis Russaw, 39, and Clifford Melvin, 27, both of Trenton. Russaw was also charged with hindering a police investigation when he gave a false name.

Mustang. The merchant told the officer the two had been acting suspiciously in the store and he had found a jacket in a dressing room they had left.

The officer followed the car and stopped it on Nassau Street. As he approached the car to ask for the driver's registration, Ptl. McManimon saw a blue suit on the back seat with a price tag still on it. The two occupants, when questioned, said that they knew nothing about how the suit got there.

After noting a Langrock label in the suit, the officer checked with the store and was informed that a blue suit valued at $350 was missing. Police determined that a grey suit found in the car valued at $275 had been shoplifted from Ballot's.

Police also charged the driver with a motor vehicle violation when they found an open bottle of liquor in the car. Both suspects were later released, pending their appearance next month in Borough court.

Slow Driver Stopped. When Ptl. Anthony Federico and Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm observed a car traveling 15 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone on Nassau Street at 2:52 Friday morning, they followed the car and stopped it on Moore Street near Hamilton Avenue.

The interior light came on when the car door opened as the officers were checking the driver's credentials and they noticed what appeared to be a black wooden club on the rear seat. They asked if they could look at it. Upon discovering it was a sword cane with a two-foot steel sword inside, they charged the driver, Raymond G. Johnson 3d, 22, of Harris Road, with possession of a dangerous weapon.

THEFT REPORT

Wallet, Wallet, Wallet. Three thefts involving unattended wallets were reported last week by police. A red nylon wallet containing $35 was stolen Friday morning from a coat in a coat room in the Campus Club on Prospect Avenue where the victim, a university student, had left it between 8:15 and 9:45. She also lost her driver's license and credit cards.

While a Princeton resident was taking a 35-minute swim at the YMCA Thursday morning, someone took her purse from her unlocked locker in the women's locker room. The $100 blue leather purse contained a check book, eyeglasses, contact lenses and assorted makeup and the victim listed her combined loss at $430.

While a Princeton resident was attending the Unitarian Church Sunday morning, she placed her pocketbook under a table in the church lounge. When she retrieved it at 11:30, she noticed that her wallet containing $100 had been stolen.

An employee at Epstein's in the Princeton Shopping Center lost $90.12 Saturday to a thief who used a key to open her locker in the employees' locker area. The victim told police that she had gone to the bank to cash a check for $90.12 and had purchased something at a drug store. She placed both items in her locker and then went to lunch. When she returned at 12:15 she discovered the money from the bank had been taken. The incident is still under inon Thursday, March 8, the Coalition, in conjunction with the Princeton Research Forum, will present Dr. Louise Duus, assistant dean, Douglass College in a talk at the Woodrow Wilson School at 8 p.m. Dr. Duus's talk is entitled, "These Things Will Be Altered 100 Years Hence." For further information call Mimi Moore, 921-7646, or Anne Jacobson, 921-2436.

At noon on Thursday, March 8, three women will discuss their projects towards "Forging a Future for Peace." Emily Wolin of the YWCA Artisan's Guild will talk about the national needlework peace ribbon which will tie up the Pentagon. Judith Neale will describe her plans for a movie based on a French children's book on peace. Linda Field will tell the ## story of the Seneca Falls Women's Encampment.

This program is presented by the Unitarian Church. Participants may bring their lunch; coffee and cake will be served. For information call Emma Forehand, 921-6146.

Voter registration will take place Saturday, March 10, from 9 to 12:30 at the YWCA where materials are currently available and are being handed out.

A Salute to New Women Officials will be held Sunday, March 11, from 3-5 at Morven, 55 Stockton Street. Honorees include Freeholder Shirley Turner of Lawrence Township, and Mayors Greg Gatterdam (Lawrence Township), Barbara Sigmund (Princeton Borough) and Barbara Wright (Plainsboro Township). This event is sponsored by the Women's Political Caucus of Mercer County and the donation is $10 per person.

A check may be sent to Nancy Schluter, treasurer, 205 South Main Street, Pennington 08534. For information call Susan Deckert, 587-7288.

An all-day conference on "Gender and War" will be held Saturday, March 17, at the Woodrow Wilson School. Four speakers from different academic institutions will speak on women and violence around the world. The conference is sponsored by Women's Studies at Princeton University and the Shelby Column Davis Center for Historical Studies, also at Princeton. For information call Diana Hoyer, 452-5430.

A film sponsored by the Princeton Chapter of the AAUW will be shown Saturday, April 7, at 7:45 at the First National Bank of Rocky Hill. The title of the film is "Killing Us Softly." For information call Alea Marshall, (201) 876-6114.

Finally, a summary of the key research findings presented at the Conference on Women's Vote held last June has been published by the League of Women Voters. Copies of the pamphlet, "The Women's Vote: Beyond the Nineteenth Amendment," are available at $1.75 each through the Princeton Area LWV. Call Jacqueline Rogers at 924-2410.

WAR IS TOPIC
OF Lecture at University. "Mars, Rams, Arms, Wars: The God in the Disease" will be discussed by psychologist James Hillman in a Spencer Trask Public Lecture at Princeton University on Tuesday at 8 in Dods Auditorium of the Woodrow Wilson School.

"The history of humankind is a history of wars," says Dr. Hillman, a founding fellow of the Dallas (Texas) Institute of Humanities and Culture. In the Trask lecture he will examine the "Love of War" as a psychological phenomenon, that is, "as an undeniable archetypal reality."

A graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, Dr. Hillman earned his doctorate at the University of Zurich. He served for a decade as director of studies at the C.G. Jung Institute, Zurich, and has been a visiting lecturer at various U.S. universities. He was professor of psychology and graduate dean at the University of Dallas in 1978-80. Currently publisher and editor of Spring Publications, Inc., he is a regular lecturer at the Eranos Conferences, Ascona, Switzerland.

EDUCATOR TO SPEAK

At Library, Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation, former U.S. Commissioner of Education, and head of Governor Kean's advisory panel on teacher certification, will speak at Princeton Public Library Tuesday at 8 p.m. His topic will be "Excellence in Education."

Dr. Boyer's most recent book is "High School, a report on Secondary Education in America." His report notes many weaknesses in our public schools and outlines priorities for improvement.

His suggestions would build on what is best in existing schools to set higher goals for all students.

Before coming to the Car Robeson Place, Princeton Public Library, Dr. Boyer was Chancellor of the State University of New York and

Ernest L. Boyer

One of these is Adaptive Aquatics, designed to teach swimming skills to handicapped children. There are currently nine Princeton-area youngsters, ranging in age from 7 to 17 who are enrolled in the class.

Each has physical, mental or neurological needs which are best met in an individualized, one-to-one style class. Each is taught by a Red Cross certified YWCA swimming instructor who has previously evaluated the needs of the student. Several who began as non-swimmers are now comfortable and capable swimmers; several are preparing to compete in the Special Olympics swimming competition. Parents report that successes in the water have meant increased self-confidence for their children and have contributed to improved eating and sleeping habits.

Another program that will gain from the Services and Surprises Auction is Saturday Spotlight, a social-recreational experience for educable mentally retarded and learning disabled teens 14-19 years old. The program provides a place for these teens to meet new friends and have fun while participating in a variety of activities and exploring interests.

The Auction will begin at 6 and will include a buffet supper, Silent Auction and Live Auction, with Woody Woodford at the gavel. Tickets are $20 apiece, and may be purchased at the YWCA office.

REGISTRATION SET For Course For Youth. Camp Fire Girls & Boys is now accepting registration for its "I Can Do It" course.

The course is designed to provide information and reinforcement to children on dealing with emergency situations. Topics covered include handling strangers

The dashed lines represent variations in the route that have been eliminated from further study. The solid lines are candidates for the route of the four-lane highway that the Department of Transportation expects to have selected by next year at this time. The solid round circles represent grade-separated intersection, and the open circle at Route 518 and the proposed Route 518 spur is an at grade intersection.

and Plainsboro. One would route 92 north of Dey Road, the other would propose direct access to the New Jersey Turnpike at Exit 8A from Route 1.

According to Russell Stevenson of the DOT, in making its studies, the Department found what he called "a big demand for traffic from townships west of Princeton desiring to go east across Route 1. Currently using Route 518, Cherry Valley Road and Route 206, this traffic would make use of the proposed 92 and relieve Princeton congestion by some 20 percent, he estimates.

Mr. Stevenson said that DOT traffic studies for the year 2008 project 17,500 vehicles per day generated locally and seeking to go to areas to the east. His assertions were disputed by Montgomery Township Committee members who maintain that traffic coming down a widened 206 from Route 287 and Hillsboro in the north will cause more of a problem.

Montgomery Committeeman Daniel Huttar, one of the authors of the CARIS proposal which has been eliminated from further consideration by the DOT, told Mr. Stevenson: "The problem with a road of this magnitude is that development along it will be so explosive. Congestions will be worse, and the safety record on Route 206 will deteriorate. You are causing more problems than you solve."

New Alignments

"Roadway triggers growth," agreed Mr. Stevenson, "but it can be controlled. It is a matter of zoning and joint planning by municipalities." He also conceded that Route 92 would not solve all the traffic problems in Princeton, but he said it would relieve it by as much as 20 percent. "Twenty percent would be very acceptable," Princeton Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike noted.

Route 518, Cherry Valley Road, and Carter Road all will become major arteries taking traffic to and from the northern terminus of Route 92. Improvements to Route 1 and to Route 571 through West Windsor will also be needed to improve traffic congestion, Mr. Stevenson said.

The municipalities represented Tuesday night each continued to press for its own alignment preferences. East Millstone urged that its proposal for an alignment along the Millstone River be reconsidered. Cranbury said it would press for the 92-32 alternative. South Brunswick was concerned about traffic using its local streets.

At the close of the presentation, Mr. Stevenson said, "I thought we'd be reaching some sort of consensus tonight, but all we've done is raise more issues."

while walking, shopping, on the phone or at the door; emergencies such as fire and accidents; basic first aid and decision making. Role playing and "hands on" techniques are used.

The course is given by trained instructors, 1½ hours, once a week, for five weeks. It will be offered for children in grades 1-3 at Nassau Presbyterian Church beginning Saturday, February 25. Registration is $20. For more information call Camp Fire at 392-6138.

EYEGLASSES SOUGHT
For Needy. The Girl Scouts in the Mercer County area, in cooperation with area Lions Clubs, are collecting eyeglasses for the needy.

As part of a community service project during the month of February, the scouts have distributed collection boxes through the area. The boxes are in churches, libraries and grocery stores. Serviceable frames, with or without lenses, are needed.

REGISTRATION SET
For Nursery School. Sandbox Tech Nursery School is accepting registration for its summer program, July 5-31 and August 1-24, for children age 2½-4½. Registration is also being taken for the fall session starting in September. TOYS ON EXHIBIT
At Morven. The current special exhibit at Morven is called "Child's Play: Historic Toys from New Jersey." It will be on view through May 19 at the historic mansion on Stockton Street that was the governor's residence and is now owned and operated by the New Jersey Historical Society.

Beginning March 1, Morven will be open to the public on Wednesdays, with guided tours at 10:30, 12:30 and 2:30, and on Saturday mornings from 9 to noon. Group tours of 12 more are available by ap-

Public Meeting on 92

The N.J. Department of Transportation will hold a public meeting on Monday in Princeton Junction to discuss the Route 92 Corridor Study in Mercer, Middlesex and Somerset Counties.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 in the West Windsor-Plainsboro High School, Commons One, Clarksville Road. An "informal information center" will precede the meeting, beginning at 6:30.

The meeting will give the public the opportunity to review findings on the various Route 92 alternative alignments that the Department developed, or was asked to investigate, subsequent to the public meeting held last March.

NJDOT project location and environmental staffs will make short presentations. Comments and questions will be received following the presentations.

For further information concerning the meeting, call John Mycoff, Area Coordinator, NJDOT Office of Community Involvement at 292-6802. pointment only on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Children's tours are available by appointment only on Fridays.

Admission is $2.50 for adults, $2 for senior citizens, and $1.50 for groups. New Jersey Historical Society members are admitted free.

Tours include period furniture and artifacts, a "Governor's Gallery," orientation films, a visit to the Morven Museum Shop, and revolving special exhibits, such as the current one on historic toys from New Jersey.

$13.6 MILLION GOAL SET
For Annual Giving. Princeton University's 1984 Annual Giving Campaign officially began Saturday with the announcement that $6,940,724 had been raised from 11,759 donors. Annual Giving Chairman Arnold M. Berlin reported to an Alumni Day audience that the 1984 goal is $13.6 million.

Annual Giving is an extensive effort to raise unrestricted funds among Princeton University alumni, parents and friends. Last year 57 percent of the alumni constituency contributed $12.4 million. The current drive ends on June 30.

For the third year, the drive is part of A Campaign for Princeton — a $300 million, five-year fund-raising venture, scheduled for completion in June 1986. Annual Giving seeks to raise $68 million during the five years.

ART AUCTION PLANNED
By Nursery School. The Princeton Junction Cooperative Nursery School will hold its third annual Art Auction on Sunday, March 4, at Conant Hall, Educational Testing Service, Rosedale Road.

The auction, run by Howard Mann of Howard Mann Art Center in Lambertville, will begin with a preview at 2 before bidding starts at 3. Original works by Dali, Delacroix, Boulangier, Picasso, Durer, Roualt and Miro will be featured. Opening bids will range from $40, to $3,000 for a work by Joan Miro, according to Mr. Mann. Admission is $5. Wine and hors d'oeuvre will be served, and the proceeds will benefit the nursery school. For tickets call Dave Todhagen at 587-5744. Tickets may also be purchased at Allens Children's Center, 134 Nassau Street.

Your passport to a carefree retirement!

For a financially secure retirement, open a Nassau Savings IRA (Individual Retirement Account) today. Anyone who is gainfully employed is eligible, even if covered by an employer pension plan.

You can contribute up to $2,000 annually, or up to $2,250 if your spouse does not earn outside income. Contributions are tax deductible and earned interest tax deferred until you start to withdraw from your IRA (between 59½ and 70½) when most people are in a lower tax bracket.

Reduce your income tax! For example, if you're in the 25% tax bracket and contribute $1,000 to your IRA, you deduct the $1,000 on your federal tax form; your tax is reduced by $250. The net IRA cost is $750. In effect, you keep an additional $250 of your hard-earned money.

For your passport to a carefree retirement, develop the profitable IRA habit at the Nassau Savings nearest you. Open your IRA with a contribution of $10 or more. Follow up whenever you desire, there's no minimum deposit required. You can contribute up until you file your federal return (usually by April 15th) the following calendar year.

Remember, the younger you start the greater tax savings you'll enjoy, and the more you will have for a financially secure retirement.

PASTOR IS ELECTED

Chairman of Board, The Rev. Robert A. Beringer, pastor of the Hopewell Presbyterian Church, has been elected chairman of the board of The Presbyterian Homes of New Jersey, whose headquarters are in Princeton.

The non-sectarian organization operates residential and nursing care facilities for the elderly in eight different locations throughout the state, and is New Jersey's largest private, non-profit operator of such facilities.

The Rev. Robert Beringer

Hope "The Rev. Jean Smith, assistant at Trinity Episcopal Church and current president of the Princeton Clergy Presbyterians Church for 20 Association, will give a homily on Sunday at 11 at the Princeton University Chapel.

The Rev. John Vannorsdall, chaplain at Yale University, will be the preacher this Sunday at 11 at the Princeton University Chapel.

The Princeton Chapter of Hadassah will hold a "Totally Awesome Auction" on Saturday evening at the Central Jersey Masonic Center in Princeton.

The auction will feature an array of goods, services, entertainment packages, lessons and assorted surprises. A silent auction will begin at 8, followed by live bidding and desserts at 9. Proceeds from the event will go to benefit the Hadassah Medical Organization. For further information call Arlyne Fox, (201) 821-6775.

The 50th anniversary of Youth Aliyah will be celebrated by the Princeton Chapter of Hadassah and the members of the Jewish Center congregation at services this Friday at 8:15.

FIRST WOMAN NAMED
Full Professor at Seminary.
The board of trustees of Princeton Theological Seminary has announced the appointment of Dr. Jane Dempsey Douglass as the Weyerhaeuser Professor of Historical Theology, effective at the beginning of the 1985-86 academic year. Dr. Douglass is the first woman to join the Seminary's faculty as a full professor.

WORSHIP SERVICE SET
By Church Women. World Day of Prayer, an annual celebration sponsored in the United States by Church Women United, will be held on Friday, March 2. In Princeton, the celebration will be held at noon at the Lutheran Church of the Messiah, 407 Nassau Street.

Worship will be led by women from the community who will follow a script written this year by women in Sweden on the theme "Living Water from Christ. Our where she has taught since 1963. Prior to joining the faculty at Claremont she was associate director of the Presbyterian Student Center in Columbia, Mo., and a teaching fellow in church history at Harvard Divinity School.

Dr. Douglass received the A.B. degree from Syracuse University, the M.A. from Radcliffe College, and the Ph.D. from Harvard University in history and philosophy of religion. She has also studied at the University of Geneva. Author of several books, she is an ordained elder in the Presbyterian Church and a member of the Caribbean and North American Area Council of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches.

The women of Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church, 170 Witherspoon Street, will hold a Smorgasbord luncheon on Sunday from 1 to 4. Tickets are $6 for adults and $3 for children under 10.

Quartet Montage will continue its chamber series at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill and State Roads, on Sunday at 3 p.m. This second of the three-concert series will feature the Brahms Clarinet Trio and the Messiah Quartet for the End of Time. ## BUSINESS

BUT CHEESE, TOO
In New Restaurant-Bar. In the beginning, they were going to call it The Cheese Cellar, but that sounded snappy and too much like a place where you would pop in and buy a wedge of something wrapped in plastic.

So now it's J.B. Winberie, Restaurant and Bar. The Stouffer-owned restaurant is on the north side of the One Palmer Square Building, entrance from Palmer Square East, open Mondays through Saturdays from 11 in the morning to 1 at night; Sundays from 11 to 3 for brunch and 3 to 10 for dinner.

With wine racks at the entrance and four dining areas with vaulted ceilings, Winberie has been designed with a wine-cellar look. There is dark mahogany woodwork and leaded stained glass and bronze, all nicely and discreetly lit with candlelight and antiqued chandeliers.

Winberie is proud of its Look of Lean menu, ("under 390 calories") with Veal Piccata, Pasta with Shrimp, Herb Broiled Sole, Chicken Marsala.

Starters include mushrooms stuffed with artichokes, baked brie with almonds and various cheese fondues, like the cheddar and beer or Emmenthal and Gruyere blended with Chablis and kirsch.

If you don't need the Look of Lean, lean toward the four-cheese linguini, sirloin strip steak with noisette potatoes and broccoli, baked scrod, chicken breast saute. And there's a cheese-and-sausage board, served with fresh fruit, French bread and Lavosh, the American cracker bread covered with melted cheese.

And you can buy a hamburger for $3.95 or a cheeseburger for $4.50. Prices are topped by the sirloin strip for $12.95. Other specialties are in the $5.95-$7.95 range. The compartmented menu allows customers to create their own meal, choosing appetizers only, perhaps, with a splurge on dessert. The wine list includes domestic and imported.

PERSONNEL NOTES

Nancy Healey has been named a sales associate at the Princeton office of Weichert Realtors.

A resident of West Windsor for seven years, Mrs. Healey has been a sales associate for six years in Mercer County. She is a member of the Mercer County Board of Realtors and has won the Million Dollar Sales award for the past three years.

John C. Lauricella of Yardville has joined Nassau Savings and Loan as vice president for construction loans, a newly-created position.

Prior to his present assignment, Mr. Lauricella was a loan officer with Roma Savings in Trenton and before that was a mortgage manager for New Jersey National Bank.

Robert L. Bjorklund has joined Richard A. Weidel Realtors as sales consultant specializing in commercial and industrial sales.

Mr. Bjorklund is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts with a Ph.D. in business and a recent associate professor of business at Rider College. He was previously vice president of Acme Corporation in Chicago, Ill., and a consultant for Hay Associates.

United Jersey Bank of 90 Nassau Street, a member of United Jersey Banks, has announced a number of appointments.

Walter H. Frister of Hamilton Square has been named vice president of commercial banking; Susan Schranz of Plainsboro has been named assistant vice president of human resources; Elizabeth O'Leary, a Plainfield resident, is now assistant vice president and commercial loan officer; and Ronda G. Skube of Hamilton is assistant cashier and retail staff development specialist.

Ivy Werner, of Hamilton has been promoted from assistant manager of branch administration to assistant cashier at United Jersey Bank. Ms. Werner joined United Jersey in 1972 and has held several positions including credit investigator and assistant manager of installment loans.

OBITUARIES

Kenneth S. Moss of 232 Redding Circle died February 15 in Princeton Medical Center. He was 70 years old and had worked for Claridge's Wine and Liquor Store in the Princeton Shopping Center and for TOWN TOPICS.

Mr. Moss was born in Winchester, Tenn., and had lived in Princeton since 1942. An Army veteran of World War II, he was a retired trucker with the Phillips Concrete Company in New Brunswick. He was a member of Mount Pisgah A.M.E. Church, the Gospel Chorus and the United Gospel Chorus of Trenton and vicinity.

Surviving are three nephews, John M. Hill of Winchester, Tenn., Bobby L. Hill of the Bronx, N.Y., and Junior Moss of Hobbs, Ill., and close friend, Thomas S. Smith and family of Ewing.

Cremation was in the Ewing Crematory. A memorial service will be held Sunday, March 11, at 4 p.m. at Mount Pisgah A.M.E. Church.

Florence B. Sinclair, of Trenton, formerly of West Windsor, died February 20 in St. Francis Medical Center.

Born in Jersey City, Mrs. Sinclair had lived in West Windsor before moving to Trenton eight years ago.

Wife of the late Charles E. Sinclair, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. David Ober of New Hope, Pa., and Mrs. Larry Best of Loch Sheldrake, N.Y., and two grandchildren.

Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated Friday at 9:30 at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church with burial in the parish cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Marion D. Novatowski, 58, of Scott Avenue, Princeton Junction, died February 16 at Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Trenton, Mrs. Novatowski was a longtime resident of Princeton Junction. For the past 26 years, she had been employed as a postal clerk at the U.S. Post Office in Princeton Junction.

Survivors include her husband, Gus Novatowski; a daughter, Kathy Herbert of Hightstown; a son, Joseph W. Servis of Hightstown; her mother, Ida Jackson of Levittown; two sisters, Ruth Meisel of Levittown and Edith Hall of Princeton Junction; two brothers, Arthur Jackson of Blawenburg and Charles Jackson of Levittown; and a granddaughter, Cathy Ann Herbert.

The service was held at the Kimble Funeral Home, the Rev. Robert L. Sullivan, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Hightstown, officiating. Burial was in Princeton Memorial Park, Robbinsville.

Privacy We all enjoy it. You've certainly earned it! Luxury and privacy are built right into Homestead's four spacious, single family models featuring 2 bedrooms, 2 baths, attached garage with automatic opener, central air-conditioning, a house full of Sears Kenmore appliances, a Sentry 24" Security System with medic alert, smoke and intrusion alarms and much more! So, why retire in a clustered community when you've earned your own privacy!

That's right, most retirement communities won't budge an inch when it comes to making changes. Take it or leave it so to speak. Not Homestead at Mansfield. Within basic model design requirements, and at nominal cost, we'll customize your home to meet your individual needs. Enlarge a dining area, add more closet space, you name it, we'll provide it!

Retirement community living shouldn't mean having to leave those who are close to you. Children and grandchildren. Friends.
Especially around the holidays.
All are important factors to consider when selecting a retirement environment. Because Homestead at Mansfield is conveniently located and easily accessible to major arteries, you'll never be too far from life's most cherished possessions, the people you love!

HOMESTEAD HAS IT ALL!

New Jersey's newest and most unique adult community for families with at least one person age 52 or older, really does have it all! Leisure and recreational activities are a way of life. Our exclusive Homestead Country Club and Clubhouse provide the ideal atmosphere for socializing by the pool, deck lounge, tennis courts and surrounding facilities. All scheduled for completion this Spring. Activities and parties are carefully planned 12 months a year. Plus, our 3-acre Lake Anna, located in the heart of the community is an oasis of relaxation.

WE'RE HERE BECAUSE

ISN'T IT TIME TO BUY A VERY SPECIAL PRINCETON HOUSE?

THIS JUST-LISTED CUSTOM WILLIAMSBURG COLONIAL NESTLED ON TWO ACRES OF WOODS AND PLANTINGS ON BROOKSTONE DRIVE IS THE ANSWER! Well back from the road, with farmland behind, totally fenced for privacy...the setting is hard to believe. Brick patios, inground pool, pool house, deck and more... it's a veritable wonderland... yet virtually in town for convenience! The house on two levels with full basement is warm and gracious with a French country feeling throughout the traditional touches and custom appointments. Formal living room with French doors and fireplace; inviting dining room and a country kitchen with fireplace. There's a cozy library with lots of built-ins as well. As many as five bedrooms with 3 1/2 baths for luxurious comfort and privacy. The somewhat finished basement and oversized two-car garage almost complete the picture, not to mention oodles of storage areas. Please call for an appointment to preview this exceptional opportunity.

Princeton Residents Dispute New Jersey's New Guidelines for Safe Microwave Exposure

How safe is safe?

This is the question that sometimes pits citizens against authorities as each attempts to cope with the by-products of industrialization and a high standard of living. Not only does it arise in issues concerning hazardous waste landfill sites and toxic substances seeping into drinking water, but also, less talked-about but just as pervasive, the so-called "electronic smog" that is everywhere.

Not many weeks after the controversy surrounding the installation of the microwave security system around Drumthwacket, some Princeton residents found themselves on opposite sides of the state's attempt to set standards governing radiofrequency and microwave exposure. In the absence of federal guidelines, the New Jersey Commission on the Radiation Protection of the state Department of Environmental Protection has held public hearings recently before adopting a Radio Protection Guide.

The guide would set maximum exposure limits to electromagnetic energy of radio frequencies between 300 kilohertz and 100 gigahertz.

What Does That Mean? Electromagnetic radiation consists of waves of electric and magnetic energy moving together through space with the speed of light. Each wave has a wavelength—the distance between corresponding points of consecutive waves—and a frequency of vibration—the number of waves that pass a given point in a second. Frequencies are measured in hertz, with one hertz equal to one cycle per second. The higher the frequency and the smaller the wavelength, the greater the energy.

The electromagnetic spectrum includes all the various forms of electromagnetic energy, from extremely low frequency radiation with very long wavelengths, to x-rays and gamma rays which have extremely high frequencies and correspondingly short wavelengths. In between these extremes lie radio waves, microwaves, infrared radiation, visible light, and ultraviolet radiation.

Radiofrequency (or RF) radiation is found near the low-frequency end of the spectrum. The most familiar applications are AM and FM radio, television, CB radio, walkie-talkies, short wave radio and other communication devices. Less well-known but also important are devices that use RF radiation to heat material in the same way that a microwave oven cooks food.

Radiofrequency heaters and sealers are used to mold plastic, seal shoes and pocket books, and process foods. Diathermy is a medical application that uses RF energy to heat tissue below the surface of the body.

Microwave Radiation. Microwave radiation is electromagnetic radiation at the high-frequency end of the RF spectrum. In addition to microwave ovens, common uses of microwave energy are in the transmission of messages, in military and civilian radar systems, in the transmission of signals between satellites and earth stations, and in the relay of signals in certain broadcasting operations such as subscription television.

Of the various forms of electromagnetic energy, x-rays and gamma rays present the greatest relative hazard because of their greater energy content and greater potential for damage. Known as ionizing radiation, x-rays and gamma rays have the ability to strip atoms and molecules of electrons, thus producing chemical alterations and the potential for damage to body tissue.

Other forms of electromagnetic radiation, such as RF and microwave, lack that ability and are often referred to as non-ionizing radiation. However, RF radiation can be hazardous due to its ability to heat biological tissue rapidly, and it is generally agreed that exposure to levels of RF energy of about 10 milliwatts per square centimeter or more can cause significant "cooking" of tissue. The two areas of the body that are particularly susceptible are the testes and the eyes, and there are known instances of cataracts and sterility from exposure to high levels of RF radiation.

There is considerable controversy in the scientific community, however, as to the biological effects of low level, or "non-thermal" RF energy, that is below the point of producing significant heating. Low-level effects reported and under investigation by researchers around the world, but not proven to everyone's satisfaction, include headaches, irritability, fatigue, cardiovascular effects, changes in hormone levels, effects on the blood-forming and immunological system, and reproductive effects.

Nub of the Argument. It is on the issue of biological effects—how safe is safe and at what point should standards be set—that Princeton residents involved in the recent hearings differ. Dr. Fred Sterzer, director of the microwave technology center at RCA Laboratories, and Dr. Henry Powsner, radiologist at Princeton Medical Center, are members of the N.J. Commission on Radiation Protection. Appointed by the governor, the commission consists of five citizens and three DEP officials. Responsible for all types of radiation safety in the state, from x-ray procedures in hospitals to nuclear power plants, it has recently celebrated its 25th anniversary.

According to Dr. Sterzer, all eight members of the Commission felt that rules governing the rapidly proliferating use of radio frequency energy be adopted for New Jersey, a state which has a high concentration of transmission towers and many industrial applications. "The Commission would have much preferred that the federal government established a standard that in turn would be binding on the states," Dr. Sterzer says. The Environmental Protection Agency has said it would establish some guidelines but has not done so; OSHA, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration responsible for workplace conditions has adopted a standard of 10 milliwatts per square centimeter which is not enforceable. Thus no enforceable standards exist, either for the general population or for the workplace.

The standard that Dr. Sterzer and his colleagues on the N.J. Commission on Radiation have proposed is About Drumthwacket The microwave security system at Drumthwacket has been tested a number of times but not turned on officially yet. It is designed as a pulsed beam operating at a frequency level that permits a power density of 5 milliwatts per square centimeter of exposed flesh, under the ANSI and proposed New Jersey standards.

Measurements taken by the state when the system is turned on show a power density of 50 microwatts. Even allowing for a doubling of that density to take into account the on-off pulsing, it is far below what is permitted. The prefix "micro" indicates one millionth of a part, "milli" one thousandth, in a metric or related measurement system.

The revised standard adopted in 1982 by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI). ANSI standards are intended as a guide to aid the manufacturer, the consumer and the general public and are not mandatory.

The 1982 ANSI safety levels with respect to human exposure to RF electromagnetic fields are lower than those adopted five years earlier and more complex. They take into account the fact that humans are more susceptible to RF electromagnetic energy at certain frequencies than at others and are therefore "frequency-dependent."

The Best Available. In response to criticism that the ANSI standards are heavily

This Year's PJ&B Offering at McCarter Is a Fresh and Funny "Charley's Aunt"

Before "La Cage aux Folles" there was "Where's Charley?" a musical comedy based on Brandon Thomas' "Charley's Aunt," that is one of the original transvestite musicals, and PJ&B's selection for its 26th annual production.
The year is 1892 during the graduation festivities at Oxford University. Two roommates, Charley and Jack, want to host two young ladies, Amy and Kitty, but Charley's widowed aunt, who was supposed to serve as chaperone, has not appeared. Naturally, Charley ends up pretending to be his aunt, Donna Lucia D'Alvodorez, fresh back from Brazil "where the nuts come from."
The plot complications of "Where's Charley" and the humor hinge largely upon the ridiculousness of a man impersonating a woman.

Every year, one ticks off the list of popular musicals Milton Lyon has directed for PJ&B and wonders what he could possibly do next; what is left for him to do? Although "Where's Charley?" was a typical PJ&B show in that it involved well over 100 people in the cast, chorus, dance corps, orchestra, crew, and production staff, it was a refreshing change, at least to this viewer, because it was not nearly as familiar as such old standards as "My Fair Lady."

Charley has all the best lines of the show, and Watson let none of them go to waste. His timing was wonderful when delivering such gems as, "Be gone, my good man, and don't bother me any longer," and, in answer to the real Donna Lucia's question, "What part of Brazil did you live in?" — "The residential part." And as if this weren't enough, Stewart brought the house down with his charming song-and-dance routine in the best known number of the show, "Once in Love with Amy." This was Stewart's second appearance with PJ&B (his first was in or last year's "Camelot." This meant the actors weren't competing with well-established images of the likes of Audrey Hepburn, Rex Harrison, and Richard Burton in the lead roles.

Not only was PJ&B's production of "Where's Charley?" a fresh change, I am also happy to report that it was extremely funny — producing perhaps the most sustained laughter McCarter Theatre has seen in quite some time. This can be attributed in part to George Abbott's clever book and lyrics, but it is more particularly due to John Watson Stewart's fine performance as

News of The THEATRES

Charley and his absolutely superb and wild performance as Charley's aunt.

From the moment he accepts flowers from the ladies and sticks them first under this arm, then down the front of his dress (blocking his face), Stewart's use of props for comic effect was among the best I've seen. He was similarly hilarious with his fan, not only fluttering it madly, but using it at one point as a dustpan and at another as a weapon with which to fend off his suitors.

Party tickets are $10 each, of which $7.50 is tax-deductible. Tickets for the performance, sold separately, range from $18 to $13. Both kinds of tickets are now on sale at McCarter's box office or in the office of McCarter Associates in the theatre.

"Kiss Me Kate" in 1961), and we hope to see him in many more.

Backing up Stewart in a production that sometimes seemed overly long when he was offstage was an altogether fine cast, including C. Peter Kaumann as Charley's earnest roommate Jack; Priscilla Orr Treadwell as Kitty; Derry Light, veteran star of nine PJ&B shows, as Amy; Ed Stout as Jack's rather appealing father; Michael W. Lawrence as the mean guardian of the two young ladies who in his greed tries to woo Charley's "aunt"; and Diana Crane as the lovely real aunt.

The choreography was once again by Joan Morton Lucas, the lighting by Don Ehnman, the excellent period costumes by Marie Miller, and the beautiful sets — including a wood-paneled room at Oxford, a garden backed by an Oxford skyline, and a chandeliered ballroom — were by Robert Little. And once again, we're left wondering: what can they possibly do next?
—Heller McAlpin

'PIPPIN'
At Theatre Intime, Stephen Schwartz' musical "Pippin" will open this Thursday at Murray Theatre on the Princeton University campus in a production mounted by Theatre Intime. The show will play again this Friday and Saturday and the following week-end. Curtain-time is 8:30 each evening.
The score includes "Magic to Do" and "Corner of the Sky." The story tells of the young Pippin, son of a powerful king, and his efforts to hold his birthright.

COME ON IN...
To "Dining Room," "I've always wanted to be a playwright, always had it in the back of my mind," says A.R. Gurney, who wrote "The Dining Room," but somehow there was the need to support a wife and four children and so he taught for 23 years at M.I.T.
"The Dining Room," currently a big offering on the regional theatre circuit, will be given by the McCarter Theatre company starting next Wednesday, February 29 and continuing through March 18.
"Teaching illuminated my writing," Mr. Gurney has commented. "I never found the two wholly disparate."

'THREE PREMIERES'
By Princeton Ballet, "Three Premieres — Two Evenings" is the billing for the opening of the Princeton Ballet's spring season at McCarter on Tuesday, March 13, and the Nicholas Music Center at Rutgers Tuesday, April 10. Performances will feature three new works by contemporary choreographers.
Highlight of the evenings will be "Fast Company" by Stuart Sebastian, set to music by Erroll Garner and described as "dynamite" by New York Times critic Anna Kisselgoff when it was given recently by the Dayton Ballet. Mr. Sebastian is director of the Dayton.

Programs will also include "Trio," a ballet for eight dancers which Dermot Burke, assistant director and ballet master of the Princeton Ballet, has set to music by Prokofiev.
Christian Holder's "Song Without Words" is the choreographer's first work for the Princeton Ballet. He has done ballets for the Joffrey and other groups and last season did the costumes for the Princeton Ballet's "Khalechurian Suite."

To Present Plays. The first presentation by JAG Productions, a new theatrical company composed of high school students in the Princeton area, will be given this Thursday at 8 in the Kirby Arts Center, Lawrenceville School.
The one-act play is "Bed," by Lawrenceville student Gus Liem, described as a tragicomic. Its chief character is a man hospitalized.

MUSIC

TWO PERFORMANCES
Of Beethoven's Ninth, The Westminster Symphonic Choir and the Princeton Ninth Symphony under conductor Michael Pratt on Friday and Saturday, March 2 and 3, at 8:30 p.m. in Princeton University's Alexander Hall. The concerts mark the first time that the two musical organizations join forces in a major performance.

The 175-voice Westminster Symphonic Choir has performed most of the great choral masterworks under major conductors. Known for its ability to blend with an orchestra, the choir is composed of men and women from Westminster Choir College, all of whom are music students as well as experienced performers.

Under the leadership of Westminster's principal conductor, Joseph Flumerfelt, the choir prepares major symphonic works for concerts and recordings. Through the years it has performed with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the National Symphony, the Boston Symphony, and many other major orchestras, including over 300 performances with the New York Philharmonic. The performances of the Princeton University Orchestra have drawn enthusiastic audiences and favorable reviews. In addition to its concerts, the Orchestra has performed as the Opera Orchestra for many productions of the Princeton University Opera Theatre, most recently for Mozart's "Così fan tutte."

For the last seven years, Michael Pratt has conducted both the Orchestra and the Opera Theatre productions. He is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music and has been assistant to Gunther Schuller at the New England Conservatory and to Leonard Bernstein for a recording with the Boston Symphony. Mr. Pratt has been guest conductor for the last four years at the Manhattan School of Music in New York, the Aspen Music Festival and assistant conductor of the Cathedral before each performance. For the four soloists for Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will be Judith Nicolson, soprano; Mary Westcott, mezzo-soprano; George Gray, tenor, and Barry Ellison, baritone. All of the soloists have been heard in the area in solo recitals, as soloists in oratorios and in operas.

Tickets at $3 (students $1), with no reserved seating, are available at the Concert

CONCERT SUNDAY

For Children at YMCA. The Princeton High School orchestra, directed by Portia Sonnenfeld, will perform a free concert for children at the YMCA, Paul Robeson Place, on Sunday at 2 p.m.

The concert is part of the year-long effort to prepare for the international music competition in Vienna, Austria, this July. Princeton High School's orchestra and choir are among a select few chosen to represent the United States at the International Youth and Music Festival, supported and subsidized by the City of Vienna and the Austrian Ministry of Education and the Arts.

The children's program for Sunday will feature some of the selections that the orchestra will play at open-air concerts for Viennese audiences. Included are Brahms Hungarian Dances, a Haydn minuet, Scott Joplin's "The Entertainer," and country fiddle tunes.

Of the $180,000 needed for the trip, parents have pledged $102,000 and the students have raised $16,000 with various projects, including a "work month," which consumed nearly 4,000 musician hours. Next month the students plan to hold a marathon dance to make up a $35,000 deficit.

Music-at-McCarter Presents Concert by Young String Trio; Individual Talents Have Not Yet Coalesced into Solid Ensemble

The fifth event of Music-at-McCarter's 1983-84 season works, and a very audible effort, featured an evening of string trio in the Menuetto of trios performed by three Beethoven's Trio in C (Op. 87), young masters of string. Kremer breathless and tense, especially (violin), Kim Kashkashian in comparison to Ma, who (viola) and Yu Yu Ma (cello) was obviously far more at ease. They do not yet possess that "second sense" of playing works from the classical period and the twentieth century.

As solo artists, these performers have come to be recognized as being among the best in the world today. One glance at their lists of engagements with major orchestras and various record companies will affirm that fact. As a trio, though, they have not coalesced into a solid ensemble. They do not yet possess that "second sense" of playing each other through eye contact and mutual musical feeling which sets the best chamber ensembles apart from the others.

In this performance, Kremer was definitely the weak link. Throughout most of the concert his tone was unduly thin and lacked a definitive character. Kremer's playing had a feeling of hesitancy about it, giving the impression that he was not as confident about his playing as either Ma or Kashkashian. This resulted in a performance that was not as convincing as it could have been.

indicative of her penchant for music of this century.

Although the other performers were very good in their own rights, no one could doubt that Ma was the most outstanding. His tone, his articulation and his phrasing all contributed to the magnificence of his playing. Beyond this, though, he performed with incredible ease, moving freely with the music, allowing it to flow through his instrument. The depth of his expressiveness nearly overshadowed that of his colleagues. This kindled the feeling that this trio, which excelled in many ways, was somewhat unbalanced musically.

Warm Viola Tunes. Violist Kashkashian played with a warm, rich tone which blended well with Ma's. Being the middle instrument, she was often required to fill in harmonies, making frequent use of precisely played double, triple and quadruple stops. Kashkashian's technical fluency was spotlighted in the first movement of the Trio No. 1 (Op. 34) by Hindemith, by far the most demanding work of the program. The agility and enthusiasm with which she played this piece were indicative of her penchant for music of this century.

A MICHAEL GRAVES DESIGN: Art Ventures, Princeton's newest gallery at 12 Nassau Street, provides a viewing area that is a work of art in its own right.

ART
ART VENTURES
Princeton's Newest Gallery.
Although the walls are covered with paintings, prints and drawings, Princeton's newest gallery could stand on its own as a work of art. Impressive combinations of structural elements - curved walls that sweep around corners, soaring spaces washed with light, and countless small, carefully conceived functional and ornamental details join to create an environment that has the visual impact of a well-developed sculptural work.

There is a lot to look at. Color is introduced where you least expect it. Bright shapes accent stark white walls. Windows are often used as architectural accents - complements to the carefully arranged spaces that frequently offer unexpected vistas. And, there is even a built-in work of art - an enormous mural by the noted Princeton architect, Michael Graves.

The dramatically arranged, contemporary interior that is neatly contained within the quaint, Dutch-style architecture of 12 Nassau Street was once the offices of Michael Graves and, as such, represents one of the architect's impressive efforts. In fact, gallery owner William Krauss reports that the unusual space is, itself, an attraction. He explains that the office-cum-gallery draws architecture students by the dozen; students who come to look at and study a space Krauss describes as... "One of Graves' early post-modern efforts and one of the most beautifully crafted spaces anywhere."

A businessman who once trained as an architect, Krauss expresses enthusiasm for such details as the narrow window, set at an angle in the thick, masonry wall, that appears to carve a slab of light out of solid materials. And, even though its view is of a neighboring brick wall, he waxes poetic about its introduction of "texture as a decorative piece of my life."

The space also functions nicely as a setting for looking at art. The offices were designed to capture impressive quantities of natural light and, as such, make viewing an especially pleasant experience. And, although the walls serve as an attraction in their own right, they also provide a suitable and unobtrusive background for the varied works that are on display.

The current collection, a mixed media group show, includes the work of area artists such as photographer, Naomi Savage, painter, Thomas George and sculptor, Jane Teller. In addition, there are drawings, photographs, paintings and prints by Harry Callahan, Andy Warhol, Milton Avery and Herb Jackson, among others.

Future shows, however, will also include the work of young artists who are not yet established. Krauss explains that he hopes that by... "splicing the work of well known artists with that of those who are

News of Clubs and Organizations

Niels H. Nielsen, president of Princeton Management Consultants, will speak "On Finding a Job, From A to Z," at a meeting of the Professional Roster Thursday, March 1, at 7:30. The Roster, a non-profit job clearing house, is located at 171 Broadmead.

Mr. Nielsen has had many years of experience as a human resources and personnel executive. He will share his understanding of the needs of manufacturing, consumer and service industries and will address the specific methods for the job seeker to use in marketing skills to the right employer.

Admission is $3 for non-Roster members and refreshments will be served. For additional information call 921-9661.

The Washington Crossing Audubon Society will present a lecture by Len Soucy of the Raptor Trust in Millington on Monday evening.

Mr. Soucy is a naturalist, photographer, lecturer and author whose specialty is rehabilitation of injured and orphaned hawks and owls. Over the past 16 years he has worked with many species of raptors and prepared them for eventual release back to the wild. These birds assist at lectures and Mr. Soucy will be accompanied by one or two owls.

The program will begin at 8 in Stainton Hall Auditorium at the Pennington School, Delaware Avenue, Pennington. Coffee and cake will be served at 7:30.

Job Seekers will meet Tuesday at 7:30 at Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street.

Robert A. Karlin, Ph.D., psychologist and hypnotherapist, will present techniques for dealing with depression, specifically in combating depression stemming from unemployment and the pressures of being unemployed. Dr. Karlin, a Princeton resident, is on the faculty of both the University of New Jersey and the Rutgers Graduate School of Applied and Professional Psychology. Those who are unemployed or seek a job change are welcome.

The Princeton Chapter of the National Association of Accountants will meet Wednesday, February 29, at Good Time Charley's Restaurant, Kingston. Postponed from January, the dinner meeting will begin at 5:30, preceded by a social hour at 4:30.

POURING TEA, CUTTING CAKE: Members of the Women's College Club are planning a benefit Dessert Bridge Party to be held Monday, March 19, at noon at Stuart Country Day School. Proceeds from the party provide college scholarship aid to qualified girls at the four secondary schools in Princeton. Pouring the tea is Mrs. Jesse McKeon. With her are, from left, Mrs. Maurice D'Agostino, Mrs. Glen Hemstock, hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Donald Skeffington, chairman of the benefit. A "Plain and Fancy" sale, a raffle, silent auction and door prizes are all part of the event. Table reservations at $20 and individual tickets at $5 are available from Mrs. George Wadleton, 924-5483.

& Co., will speak on "No More Deferred Taxes." Guests are welcome. For information and reservations, call Glenn Savarese at (201) 464-8100, ext. 2304.

Overeaters Anonymous will hold an open house Thursday, March 1, from 8 to 10 p.m. at the East Brunswick Public Library.

The film, "One Day at a Time, One Pound at a Time," will be shown and a panel of Overeaters Anonymous members will answer questions about the O.A. program. Admission is free and literature will be available. Overeaters Anonymous is not a diet club or a profit-making organization, but is a worldwide self-help group made up of recovering compulsive overeaters who help each other with the problems they have in common.

For more information call (202) 388-8998.

Business and Professional Women's Club will hold a workshop on travel on Tuesday from 6 to 7:30 at the First National Bank of Central Jersey, 1 Washington Street, Rocky Hill. Kathi Krahlin, certified travel consultant who manages the business travel department of Revere Travel in Princeton, will lead the workshop.

IT'S NEW To Us

CHANGES AT IVY MANOR
Under New Management. A new look for spring can be seen at the Rug and Furniture Mart in the Princeton Shopping Center. A knowledgeable manufacturer's representative in the business for many years, Gil Hancock has exciting plans for the Ivy Manor showrooms which he took over at the beginning of January. Related by marriage to the shop's original owner, Roger Yard, whose company began in Flemington 50 years ago and later moved to Princeton, Mr. Hancock intends to build on the store's fine reputation by featuring some of the finest 18th century reproduction furniture available.

Shoppers will note some attractive changes in the 10,000 square foot showroom. Nine-by-twelve sections of different styles of carpeting, chic new wallpaper, rooms painted in deep magenta offsetting art deco pieces, and vignettes of the popularized country furniture are now more easily viewed. By spring, Mr. Hancock hopes to refurbish the entire store.

Originally from West Trenton, Mr. Hancock spent several years in the furniture business in Seattle and New Orleans representing three different companies. When he decided to move back east, the Rug and Furniture Mart was a natural progression in his career. His cousin, Sylvia Nini Yard, also works with him.

"What I would most like to emphasize here is quality and value. I am dedicated to both," explains the new owner, who devotes 16 work hours a day to achieving that goal. Famous brand names in furniture such as Lane, Simmons, and Stratton, Hickory Chair, and Kittinger are on display in attractive groupings in the shop. The fabric section will yield the latest and the traditional designs by Waverly, Norman's of Salisbury, Schumacher, Robert Allen, Stroheim, Roman and Westgate.

The Rug and Furniture Mart offers full decorating services to its customers in addition to carpet cleaning, upholstery and drapery service. The two interior decorators on the staff will see to such small details as ashtrays and pictures on the wall if the client so desires. Lovely Stiffel lamps will complement any groupings.

It is evident, as one wanders through the showrooms, that Mr. Hancock knows the business well. The country look, "American Digest," by Hickory Chair Company includes a line of handsome walnut cabinets, dining tables, and chairs.

"There is an explosion in the country furniture area. It is one of our biggest sellers," exclaims Mr. Hancock. A select pine Shaker cabinet, dining table, and eight chairs, sophisticated yet simple, by Heywood-Wakefield is on sale for less than half the original price. A storewide sale of floor samples will continue through next month. Terrific values in upholstered sofas and loveseats, and bedroom and dining room furniture can be found here.

Of special note is Lane's "Lido" group inspired by the Milan art festival and the 18th-century reproductions. A handsome pencil four poster bed, chests, and night tables and mirrors are on display in the window of the shop.

"We are so close to Bucks County here, and we respect the tradition of Princeton, the taste of Princetonians, who prefer the more traditional lines. They will be the mainstay of our business," promises Mr. Hancock, who also reveals that his prices are more than competitive.

The spring season will bring a huge new stock of furniture and a fine collection of summer indoor and outdoor pieces including wrought iron furniture.

BRIGHTEN TIRED ROOMS
Help from Home Decor. Begone with the February doldrums! Stop in at Home Decor's mid-winter sale and give yourself and your home's interior a lift. The shop will assist customers in choosing new window treatments, or drapes which make such a difference in a "tired" room.

The new Waverly Roman blind, called Warm Windows, is a pretty and wise selection. Lined in energy-saving fabric with magnets at each side to insure a snug fit, the shade can be made up in any of the Waverly fabrics in four weeks — just after spring cleaning is completed!

Who would not like to splurge on a new pair of crisp ruffled curtains, a chic new comforter with a matching dust ruffle, and alluring ruffy shams? Home Decor has wonderful choices which will give your bedroom and bath a new look for spring.

Owner Richard Katen is well-versed in what his Princeton customers prefer.

He now carries Laura Ashley sheets and comforters — both of which are on sale. It is hard to believe, but Cabbage Patch sheets will soon be in stock! Kermit and Miss Piggy sheets and comforters are on sale at 25 percent off.

Remember the good old days when everyone had supercale all-cotton sheets? The luxurious sheets with blue or white scallops are on sale for $22.98 and $17.98. Trousseau lace sheets and even blankets trimmed in lace are also available at reduced prices — a versatile choice.

Is it not time for a new set of everyday place mats? Gaily colored plain or print ones, trimmed in ruffles with make napkins to match will make nice gifts throughout the year. Napkins and handtowels are perfect hostess gifts so stock up now when the prices are so reasonable.

In many homes the bathroom is the most neglected room from a decorating standpoint. Stop in at Home Decor to see the myriad bathroom accessories which will turn an average bath into a high tech environment. Hanging shelves, baskets, scales, shower curtains, and even an inflatable pillow for a leisurely bubble bath, are all well displayed.

Take advantage of the sale on vertical and mini blinds by Versol, Kirsch, and Joanna. They come in a variety of woods, synthetics, and easy-to-clean metals in a rainbow of colors, a popular way to decorate these days.

Towels of the finest quality with traditional monogramming are available at Home Decor, ideal gifts for a bride-to-be. Tiny eyelet pillows will please anyone who wants to feel a bit more feminine — a nice thought for Easter too. Pillows of all sizes and shapes, and bed rests with or without arms, are featured at the shop, an effective and inexpensive way to lend a decorative touch to the bedroom or living room.

geometry of Werner Drewes, one of the first Bauhaus artists to work in this country, is combined with the lyrical, sun washed desert colors of avant garde painter, Raymond Jonson and the simplified realism that marks the work of Milton Avery.

There are also paintings by Clarence Carter and Ralph Rosenberg and, in both cases, the art comes as a surprise. Carter's recent work, symbolic, often surrealistic, highly finished works contrast strongly with the more conventional, regionalist watercolor landscapes and the precisionist industrial study, "Coal Docks at Superior." Although Rosenberg ultimately became a painter of abstracted landscape, he was a most advanced painter by the standards of the 40's and his paintings in this collection seem to anticipate later styles.

Wilcox Paintings at Art Masters. Jarvis Wilcox's essentially traditional paintings are a happy mixture of color and surface. Using a palette knife rather than a brush, Wilcox lays pieces of rich, crisp color on his canvas, often using the knife to create heavy impasto effects. The eclectic combination of subject matter includes still life, interiors, landscape and figurative works. And, although they fall within the bounds of tradition, there is a sharpness of contrast and an intensity that makes them distinctive.

The artist is adept at capturing light and developing color gestures within the limitations of an essentially realistic palette. And, the subjects often exceed the bounds of convention. Along with zinnias and wineglasses there are glittering tin cans and other ordinary, everyday items. Toothbrushes, telephones, even a bathroom faucet take on a certain glamour in these well-conceived and well-executed paintings.

At Full House, Chinese Paintings. People who have travelled to China are especially fond of the paintings by Liu-Tse Ming that are the featured display. The earth-toned palette that dominates the collection of landscape and figurative works reflect the actual landscape of the artist's native terrain. Oils and brush drawings, combinations of the traditional Chinese idiom and a stronger primitive statement create interesting balances in renditions of such subjects as grave figures and more classical still life.

Anna Contino's watercolors — nicely composed and expertly painted still lifes and landscapes — are an especially fine example of the use of that medium. Controlled washes and eloquent linear effects are used to create romantic vignettes that are consistently and pleasingly developed.

WINNERS

Works on Display. Four artists in the Princeton area have been named 1984 Visual Arts Fellowship winners by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts and their works will be on view through March 28 at Nabisco Brands USA Gallery, East Hanover. Awards were presented to 90 of the 432 artists who applied for visual arts fellowships and the four exhibiting are among those receiving first-priority rating.

Artists are Jeff Epstein, Lawrenceville (graphics); Bill Leech, Hightstown (painting); Joan Needham, Hopewell (mixed media); Peter Stroud, Rocky Hill (painting).

EXHIBITS

Paintings and sculptures by Joan Stephenson will be shown at the Princeton University League from March 6 through April 6. An alumnus of the Johnson Atelier, she is now executing sculptures in her own studio and is represented in private collections in North America and her native England. In her oils, she uses both figurative and abstract approaches. Details of location and hours may be obtained by calling 452-3650 between 9 and 1.

Watercolors by Joan Quackenbush — local scenes, florals and animals — will be on view from Thursday, March 1 through Saturday, March 31 in the Mary Jacobs Library, Rocky Hill. A member of the Garden State Watercolor Society and the Princeton Art Association, Mrs. Quackenbush has exhibited in the Loft Gallery and in Rocky Hill's Plaza One.

Prints in variety and photographs will be displayed at New Jersey Museum. An exhibit of ceramic sculpture of New Jersey in the second annual juried show, to be held from February 26 through the years immediately after March 30 at the Council's World War II will open this Saturday at the New Jersey Center, North Branch Station, State Museum, West State five miles west of Somerville, Street, Trenton. It will remain through April 15.

The opening reception Sunday, February 26 from 2 to 5, will feature a discussion by participating artists from 3 to 3:30.

Harvard Five Gets First Win Here in 25 Years; Tigers Hang On to One-Game Lead in Ivy Race

All the experts seemed to agree that the race for the Ivy League basketball title would be a wide-open affair this season, and just when Princeton had a chance to prove everyone wrong, it came up short.

After beating Penn at home last Tuesday, the Tigers seemed to have a clear road to the title, needing only to capture their four remaining home games. Since neither of the four teams, Dartmouth, Harvard, Brown and Yale, had ever won a game in Jadwin, and darn few in its predecessor, Dillon Gym, that did not seem to much to ask.

SPORTS

The Orange and Black kept the streak alive against Dartmouth last Friday night, winning 61-49, but the following evening, it was upset by Harvard, 55-50. That victory was the first by the Crimson here since a 59-54 triumph in 1958 against a Cappy Cappon team.

Had Princeton won, it would have had a hammerlock on first place, ahead by two games with just four to play. As it is, the Tigers are still ahead by one, because Brown could not beat Cornell at Ithaca, and Harvard lost to Penn Friday night.

Thus, Cornell, Brown and Harvard are all one game behind. Penn, which has had a similar streak against the four New England teams in the Palestra lost to Dartmouth Saturday for the first time in 24 years.

Next weekend will find the Orange and Black on its final road trip, playing Cornell Friday and Columbia Saturday. It will close out its season against Yale and Brown in Jadwin the first weekend in March.

DRIVING FOR TWO: Kevin Mullin drives around Howie Levy for a basket in the second half against Harvard Saturday night, but his 22 points were not enough to prevent Princeton from being upset, 55-50 by the Crimson.

Given their one game lead, the Tigers still remain the team to beat, and at least a split in their road games would make it very difficult for anyone to catch them. It's doubtful any of the other three will win all four.

The league is so balanced at the moment, that almost every Ivy game still to be played should be rated as a toss-up.

Cornell must play at Harvard, the Crimson must play at Brown, and the Bruins must play here. A tie is a possibility, and would be settled with a playoff after the season ends.

Princeton rolled over Cornell by 20 just 10 days ago, but don't look for anything like that in Ithaca. The Big Red won at home a year ago by 12, and lost here. The Lions are sure to engage in another slowdown battle, and could easily reverse their 34-28 defeat two weeks ago if they get ahead early.

with a 10-2 outburst early in the final 20 minutes, and only allowed the Tigers a brief 3-36 lead with 6:36 left, before pulling in front for good.

Harvard was guilty of 17 turnovers in the contest, but held on in spite of its poor ball handling.

Twice the Orange and Black pulled to within one as the final minutes ticked away, but Carrabino led a steady parade of Crimson players to the foul line to keep the lead intact. Never before in the history of the rivalry has Harvard won two games from Princeton in the same year, and if the Tigers are beaten out for this year's title, the Crimson would seem to have the best chance of pulling it off.

"Moon" Shines for Tigers. Mullin gave a stellar performance on Friday night against Dartmouth, scoring 29 points, two more than his career high set last Saturday against Cornell.

His 12 for 16 shooting from the floor, which produced 18 first-half points, was needed to offset some excellent shooting by the Big Green, which stayed with the Orange and Black until the game's final minutes.

The visitors hit 63 per cent of their shots in the first 20 early in the second half, but minutes to 58 percent for the Dartmouth made one more Tigers. Dartmouth started run before yielding. Sparked with a 6-0 lead, and stayed by the fine inside shooting of ahead until a jump shot by senior forward Brian Burke, Smyth gave Princeton a 20-19 who finished with 20 points, lead with 7:14 left.

score at 37-37 with about nine minutes left.

From that point Mullin and Smyth combined on the next 10 Princeton points to hold off the Dartmouth charge, and give the Tigers a six-point lead, 47-41. Smyth, playing with a bruised left heel, that has bothered him for more than a month, hit three key shots during this stretch. He finished with 10 points.

When Levy hit a basket with less than four minutes remaining to make it 49-43, Carril ordered a slowdown, forcing Dartmouth to go after the ball. Thereafter, Princeton hit a couple of easy lay-ups, and eight of nine from the foul line, as the Big Green fouled repeatedly.

In addition to Mullin's career high, Carter had one of his own, a more modest 12 points, but still very significant. He still takes some shots that has Carril shaking his head, but the junior forward has become a consistent threat to score from the outside.

HOCKEY SPLITS A PAIR

Beats Colgate, Loses to Maine, Princeton's men's hockey team gave its supporters a rare treat last Wednesday night, dumping a high-riding Colgate team, 8-2. Perhaps it was the knowledge that they were playing their final game of the season before the hometown fans that spurred the Tigers on. Possibly, they were out to atone for an earlier season loss to the Red Raiders in which they blew a 6-0 lead. Whatever the reason, the Orange and Black put on one of its best performances of the season.

Unfortunately, coach Jim Higgins' skaters left whatever momentum they had behind when they flew to Orono, Maine for a contest with the Black Bears Saturday night, losing 5-4 in overtime. The loss dropped the Tigers to 6-16-1 with two games left to play.

Those two will come on the road this weekend against Dartmouth on Friday night and Harvard the following evening. Considering their games here 10 days ago, the Tigers would have the best opportunity of picking up a second win against the Big Green, and a slimmer chance of defeating Harvard on its own ice.

Believe it or not, Princeton still retains a mathematical chance of winning the league, and gaining a spot in the ECAC playoffs, but the chance is purely mathematical, involving a total collapse by Harvard. More than likely, the season will end in Cambridge this Saturday.

Last Saturday, a letdown in the second period hurt Princeton's chances of gaining its seventh victory of the season, against an undistinguished (12-19) Maine sextet. Its coach, Jack Semler, who was Higgins' predecessor here, has already announced he will not return next season.

Sophomore forward Tim Oshier provided the only first period tally by either team when he scored his first of two goals at the 12:23 mark. The home team then held Princeton scoreless for the next 20 minutes, while taking a 3-1 lead.

Goals by Todd Ladda on a power play and freshman David Downing less than two minutes apart brought the Orange and Black even in the third. Maine took a brief 4-3 lead later on, but Oshier's second tally at 13:11 sent the contest into overtime. Only 63 seconds remained in that 10-minute session when the Black Bears got the winning score.

For a change Princeton outshot its opponents. Wally McDonough was in the nets all the way for the Tigers, and made 43 saves.

Fine Finale for Wally. He toiled in relative obscurity for three years, as the back-up goaltender to the incomparable Ron Dennis. As a starter in his senior year, his record to date is only 4-14-1, with a goals-against average approaching five per game.

But Wally McDonough will be missed next season. He was a much better goalie than the statistics will ever show, proving it again in the Tigers' final home game of the season last Wednesday.

Colgate came to Baker Rink with a 17-10-1 record, and a good shot at making the ECAC playoffs in March. One of those victories came against the Tigers in the consolation round of the Syracuse Tournament. The Red Raiders rallied from a 6-0 deficit to win, 7-6, in overtime.

It was a different story this time. The Orange and Black again got off to an early lead, scoring three times in the first period. The visitors tallied early in the second, but did not score again until Princeton had a 7-1 lead late in the third. McDonough was the difference, stopping 30 of 31 shots, in the first two periods, and 43 for the game. Setting up well on power play opporregular season ends Sunday afternoon against Harvard. Both games are in Baker Rink.

In addition to the Brown triumph, the Tigers also knocked off Northeastern, 4-3, on Sunday, for their first victory over the Huskies. All four goals came off power play opportunities. After a scoreless first period, junior Suzanne McGilvray got the Tigers on the board with a goal 42 seconds into the second period.

The visitors quickly countered with a pair less than a minute apart to take a 2-1 lead. However, later in the period, Princeton also scored twice in less than 60 seconds to go back in front, 3-2. Syrena Caribon and Cynthia Griffin scored for the Orange and Black.

Northeastern tied the score at 3-3, midway through the third, but Laura Halderson put in the winning tally at 14:49. Patti Kazmaier had three assists. Goalie Simone Feinhandler made 26 saves. Patti Hunt had 30 for the Huskies.

The pair of victories raised the team's record to 11-4 overall, 6-4 in Ivy play. Coach Bill Quackenbush has a 32-3 record in Ivy play the last three years.

Another first-place finish would put Princeton into the playoffs again, against the same three teams that played last year, Providence, New Hampshire and Northeastern. Princeton's four losses this season have come against Providence, three times, and New Hampshire.

PDS vs. PENNINGTON
 In Prep 'B' Semifinals, The Princeton Day basketball team is two games away from proving it is the best among the Prep 'B' basketball teams in the state.

The Panthers will play Pennington this Wednesday in the semi-finals at Pennington to determine who will advance to the final round Saturday. Rutgers Prep and Dwight-Englewood are in the other bracket. If past performances are any indication, PDS has an edge; it defeated the Raiders, 72-58, last month.

PDS advanced with a 62-33 rout of Wardlaw on Saturday at PDS. The visitors actually led the Panthers, 12-10, in the first period, but it was all downhill from there.

The Blue and White outscored Wardlaw, 24-6, to take a 34-18 lead at halftime. In the third quarter, Wardlaw never got a single point, while Princeton High School is seeking an assistant coach who has a background in field events for spring track. Applicants must have a valid New Jersey teaching certificate or a minimum of 60 college credits.

Applicants should contact athletic coordinator Carol Parsons or assistant principal Norman Van Arsdale at the Princeton Regional Schools' personnel office.

PDS added 16 to lead 50-18 at the end of three.

Andy Bing's 14 points led the home team. Frank Little, Scott Roberts and Lynch Hunt contributed 10 apiece.

PDS warmed up for the contest with a 57-45 victory over Academy of New Church the day before. It trailed, 30-27, at halftime, but took a two-point lead at the end of three periods, and outscored ANC, 15-5, in the final quarter. Jon McCaughy and Bing shared scoring honors with 11 apiece.

PHS FIVE ENDS 6-12
 Wait 'til Next Year. With a 52-46 loss to West Windsor last week, the Princeton High School basketball team ended its season with a 6-12 record. The 333 average was a disappointment to coach Marvin Trotman and to the players — but not wholly unexpected.

Before the start of the season, Trotman had commented, "When you look at the long range, I think we're a year away. I'm looking for big things next year. Right now we are a young team, short on experience. It will depend on how quickly we jell."

As a team, the Little Tigers never did coalesce. The natural floor leader that Trotman was searching for did not emerge; the injury in the fifth game to sophomore starter Marvin Trotman Jr., upon whom his father was depending to bolster the backcourt, hurt the team; the team had problems mastering the man-to-man defense that Trotman favors; there were constant changes in the starting lineup as Trotman sought to find a cohesive unit; all these factors worked against the Blue and White.

In the Colonial Valley Conference League, PHS finished in a three-way tie for fifth place with Hightstown and McCortistin. All compiled 4-6 league marks. Ewing, the pre-season favorite, led by standout Tom Berry, did not disappoint its followers. It finished on top with a 10-0 league record. Overall, the Blue Devils are 18-3.

Notre Dame finished a game behind in the league at 9-1. West Windsor was third at 7-3, while Hamilton and Steinert were tied for fourth at 6-4.

In regular season play, PHS defeated Lawrence and Hopewell Valley twice each. Both teams finished on the bottom in the league with 1-9 records. Its other two wins were back-to-back victories over Hightstown and McCortistin in midseason — the only time the Little Tigers were able to win two in a row.

In the Mercer County Tournament now in progress, Princeton High was eliminated in the preliminary round by Peddie, 55-54.

Green, Young Return. So it is on to next year with its high hopes for greater success. The 1984-85 team will be built around Keith Green and Freddie Young and Trotman. Green is one of the premier jumpers in the county and was this year's leading scorer for PHS with 256 points — a 14.2 average. One of Trotman's consistent complaints during the season was his team's inability to get Green the ball as often as he would have liked.

A deadly outside shooter, Young was second in scoring with 243 points and a 13.5 average. He reached 20 points or higher on three occasions — the team's season high was Green's 25 in a 10-point win over McCortistin — as he and Green were the heart and soul of the offense.

Trotman reached double figures in the first three games but was sidelined for the season with an ankle injury during a 52-23 win over Hopewell.

Two of four seniors on the team are hard-working Jon Lysaker and Jon Davidson. At 6-7, Davidson, a transfer from Pennington School, had the height but not the strength to be a factor under the boards. The other seniors are two husky former football players in the PHS backfield, Jason Petrone and Albino Nini. Both saw limited action, although Nini started to come on near the end of the season, hitting for 11 points against Lawrence and 10 in the finale with West Windsor.

Next year should be the year of the Little Tigers. The league is due to be expanded again into a two-tier system where the smaller schools such as PHS, Hopewell and Lawrence will have their own division and the larger schools will have theirs.

Final Period Decides. In the final game of the season Thursday against West Windsor, PHS exhibited its inclination to fade in the final period. PHS had fought back from a 33-24 halftime deficit by outscoring the Pirates 14-4 in the third period to take a 38-37 lead. In the final eight minutes, however, PHS could find the net for only eight points while WW was hitting for 15 for a 52-46 win and its fifth in a row. Green, Young and Nini all had 10 points to pace the Little Tiger offense.

Two days earlier, PHS picked up hapless Hopewell Valley (3-19) for a 48-33 win.

Led by Green's 17 points and Young's 13, PHS outscored the Bulldogs 31-13 in the second half. Chris Carlson and Bob Mikita combined for 29 points for Hopewell.

MAT TOURNAMENTS NEXT
 For PHS, Hun. The Princeton High and Hun School wrestling teams will end their seasons this weekend by competing in state and prep school tournaments.

The annual NJISAA District 17 matches will be held again Friday night and Saturday at Hunterdon Central High. For the Little Tigers, their best hope of advancing to the

Sports in Princeton

Region 5 matches rests in their two big men — 188-pounder Brett Van deBovenkamp and heavyweight Tamer El-Shakhs.

El-Shakhs has won 11 bouts, six by pins, and has lost five and tied one. Van deBovenkamp also has 11 wins, five by falls, and has lost six times.

Hun will compete in the state tournament for independent schools which will be held this weekend at Dwight-Englewood.

Todd Lipani will be a favorite to capture the 155-pound crown with his record of 17-2. Eleven of his victories ended in falls.

Two others that coach Dave Faus will be counting on for points are Rob Cobun, the Raiders' fine 141-pound wrestler who has a record of 12-7-2, including eight pins. Nick Wolfy has posted a 9-8-3 record in the 115-pound division.

PHS Routed in Finale.
 Princeton's final dual meet of the season last week against Lawrence was a barometer of the entire season. The Little Tigers were no match for the Cardinals, losing for the 14th time in 15 tries this year, 59-4. PHS failed to win a single bout but gained two draws for its four points. Marco Cucchi battled Lawrence's Scott Bard to an 8-8 standoff at 108 pounds and El-Shakhs and Cardinal heavyweight Bob Behrmann wrestled to a 1-1 draw.

Of the remaining 10 bouts, Lawrence won six by pins and captured one more by forfeit and another by default. Senior Matt Cohen came closest to breaking the Cardinals' string when he lost a 5-4 decision at 170 pounds to Jason Brodowski.

In the Colonial Valley League, PHS finished second from the bottom above winless Hopewell Valley with a 1-7 mark. Hightstown won the CVC crown with a record of 8-1. Ewing, Hamilton and West Windsor were all tied for second place at 7-2.

Hun Wins Fourth Meet. Hun raised its record to 4-12-1 last week with a 33-24 victory over New Hope.

When New Hope scored consecutive pins at 170 and 188 pounds, it narrowed Hun's lead to 27-24, but it had no hope of winning when it forfeited at heavyweight. A 31-second pin by Cobun and Lipani's fall in 1:15 over Chris Anderson had staked Hun to a 27-12 lead.

Hun opened with a quick 12-0 lead when New Hope forfeited the first two bouts. Another winner for Hun was Steve Wolf who decided Tom Krosavage, 7-1. Wolfy lost a free-wheeling 12-10 match to New Hope's Joe McKeever at 115 pounds.

Hun will end its regular season this Wednesday in a makeup match against Wardlaw.

HUN DRIVES FOR TWO: Hun's John Goeke (21) has position for a layup in Saturday's NJISAA Division A tournament game against St. Benedict's, despite the outstretched arms of Matt James, and as teammate John McDonough (20) looks on. The visiting Bees used superior foul shooting to shock first-seeded Hun, 59-58, and eliminated them from the tournament. Hun was the defending tournament champion.

Hendrickson observed that School basketball coach Bob Hun had missed every chance to win the game. The last of these came with 12 seconds to play and Hun leading, 58-57. John Goeke went to the foul line to shoot a 1-and-1 but missed his first shot and a chance to seal the win. St. Benedict's gained

The win sends the fourth-seeded St. Benedict's into the state championship game against Lawrenceville School this Wednesday. Lawrenceville, seeded second, defeated Peddie, 59-47, in the other semi-final battle.

Hun was scheduled to oppose Steinert in the quarterfinal round of the Mercer County Tournament this week, but its ouster from the prep school tourney was a surprise.

Hun entered the contest with a 19-5 record. The visiting St. Benedict's squad had won only six of 18. But the Grey Bees took charge of the game, after falling behind, 15-8, in the first period, by outscoring Hun, 41-29, over the next two.

Normally a fine shooting team, Hun suddenly found a lid on the basket. Its shot from the field wouldn't drop. Even easy layups didn't go down. To add to the Raiders' woes, Hun also failed to score from the foul line.

Hun was barely over .500 from the charity stripe, converting 10 of 19. St. Benedict's in turn, won the game when it was able to sink 19 of 25 free throws.

control of the ball and Sean McCray of the Grey Bees then sank two foul shots with five seconds left to give the visitors' their one-point margin.

Hun's three post-graduate students, who have led Hun all season, again paced the offense. Ted Bransfield from Pennsbury High connected for 15 points. Goeke from McCortistin added 14, while John McDonough from Christian Brothers Academy had 12.

Joe Dooley with a game-high 24 points, including 11 in the third period when St. Benedict's outscored Hun by eight, paced the victors.

LONG SEASON ENDS
 For PHS Quintet. A long season ended last week for the Princeton High School girls basketball team. Long only in terms of the number of wins; there were only three in 18 games.

In the Colonial Valley League, PHS finished second from the bottom with a 1-9 record, one game better than Lawrence which was 0-10 in league play. The League was won by Hightstown with a 9-1 record, edging three teams tied for second at 8-2: Ewing, McCortistin and Notre Dame.

In its season's finale, the Little Tigers dropped a 68-48 decision to West Windsor. The pivotal eight minutes of play came in the second period when the Pirates outscored the Little Tigers, 25-10.

Paige Walden, the most consistent scorer for coach Joyce Jones the past two seasons, paced PHS with 20. Monica Greenland added 11 and Tami Morton, 10.

Twenty-six points by Cindy Lombardo and 14 by Mary Ann Tagliaferri powered the 13-9 Pirates to their seventh consecutive win.

weighted in favor of industry, which provides most of the funding of the Institute, Dr. Sterzer points out that the committee that made up the RF guidelines was also composed of representatives from universities, consumer groups, insurance underwriters, and the federal government. "It was a major effort involving a large number of people," he says. "It is impossible to mount such an effort in New Jersey, given the lack of funds and limited resources. We felt this was the best standard to have. It is not written in granite. Just as ANSI reviews its standards every five years, so will we."

Although the 1982 ANSI standard is lower than that of 1979 and is frequency-dependent, it is still not low enough to assuage the concerns of the Drumhackett neighbors. According to Dr. Calvin Martin, the ANSI level is still "several thousand" microwatts higher than where many researchers are finding non-thermal, biological effects. Massachusetts has recently adopted guidelines half of that proposed by New Jersey, and the level expected to be adopted by Connecticut will also be lower, he thinks.

Dr. Martin and Mrs. Peggy Spanel and other residents argue that New Jersey should not adopt the ANSI standard and that it is "premature" to do so in the light of gathering evidence of health hazards.

"Industry is sneaking through an industry-devised standard."

No Consensus. "Among laboratory scientists there is no consensus as to what constitutes a safe threshold," Dr. Martin asserts. "The jury is still out on the biological effects of low-level radiation. But if you are going to start somewhere (to set a standard), hold a real hearing and bring in the people who are doing the research."

Dr. Martin and Mrs. Spanel, both of whom attended one of the other of the public hearings held by the Commission, are critical of the make-up of the Commission and of the fact that the public was not properly notified of the hearings. Mrs. Spanel says she called every environmental and public interest group that she could think of, and not one had received notice of the two hearings, one held at Morris County College, the other at Gloucester County College.

She points out, as does Dr. Martin, that of the five public members of the Commission, two—the chairman and Dr. Sterzer—are with Bell Labs and RCA Labs, respectively, both companies with a stake in satellite communications, and a third—Dr. Powsner—is a radiologist experienced in ionizing but not in non-ionizing radiation.

"The people who are doing the work that contradicts the ANSI safety levels were not adequately represented on the Commission," Dr. Martin asserts. "Industry is sneaking through an industry-devised standard. Under this standard industry will continue to operate existing installations and install new ones. It will take the heart out of pending litigation."

Dr. Sterzer acknowledges that the public was not well notified about the hearings but says that was the responsibility of the DEP, not the Commission. Both he and Dr. Powsner disagree that the particular interests and vocations of the members limit their ability to deal intelligently with the issue at hand. "I believe the commission is made up of a number of individuals who are knowledgeable and who are going to be objective and work in the best interests of the public," Dr. Powsner says.

"We are currently with no radiation protection guide," he adds. "We need something now to protect people in industry who have no protection. We are better off having a guideline than none."

Action Is Needed. Both agree that the extent of the biological effects is not fully known and both are sympathetic to citizens' groups, such as the one in Vernon, N.J., which is alarmed about the high incidence of birth defects in their community. Many residents attribute the birth defects to the presence of clusters of satellite transmitting antennae.

"If you take the position you wait until you know everything," Dr. Sterzer remarks, "you won't do anything. The best is the enemy of the good—that is the original prescription for inaction. 'You do the best you can—you have to use common sense and try to find some balance.'"

Cancer Treatment. The Microwave Technology Center at RCA which Dr. Sterzer directs has been a pioneer in developing microwave applications for the successful treatment of breast cancer and brain tumors. Malignant tumors are often more sensitive to heat than normal tissues, and can be selectively heated to higher temperatures than surrounding tissue. It is therefore often possible to destroy cancers selectively, either by heat alone or by a combination of heat and radiation therapy.

Dr. Sterzer is concerned that the public not become fearful through media reports on the microwave controversy and brand all microwave applications as hazardous. He knows of instances in which cancer victims have refused localized hyperthermia which might have been life-saving because of pre-conceived fear of microwave.

Dr. Martin says that the issue of diathermy therapy should be separated from the question of setting standards for non-occupational ambient levels of radiofrequency and microwave. "People should be frightened," he says.

The Commission on Radiation Protection's Advisory Committee on Non-ionizing Radiation, of which Dr. Sterzer is chair, is currently in the process of sifting and weighing all the comments raised at the hearings and in writing by interested citizens. This committee will then make a report to the Commission which will either adopt or make some modification of the ANSI standard for New Jersey.

And My Microwave Oven?

The Bureau of Radiological Health of the Food and Drug Administration has regulated the manufacture of microwave ovens since 1971.

The Bureau has established a radiation safety standard that allows leakage up to 5 milliwatts per square centimeter at approximately two inches from the oven surface. The standard also requires ovens to have two independent interlock systems that prevent the oven from generating microwaves the moment the latch is released or the door of the oven is opened.

used by the university for modernizing research and teaching spaces in the laboratory, which was constructed in 1929. Plans for the renovation include the expansion of the building's research laboratories and library, the improvement of existing teaching laboratories and the construction of a new teaching laboratory for introductory chemistry.
